

E-update for London's Museums – 06 July 2020

The new guidance on reopening museums has been published by the National Museum Directors' Council (NMDC) with support from DCMS and the Museums and Galleries Working Group. AIM has worked with the national Museum Development Network to produce a related and accompanying checklist to this new guidance. You can find the Guidance, and the Checklist, on AIM's website here. If you would like help or advice with reopening, do contact your MDO. The Government has also recently clarified how organisations are expected to support the NHS Test and Trace. You can find further information on Test and Trace on the Gov.uk website.

The National Lottery Heritage Fund's Heritage Emergency Fund can now also be used to help organisations reopen after the coronavirus (COVID-19) crisis. NLHF are also encouraging organisations funded by them more than 10 years ago to apply, as well as those funded by them more recently. Detailed information for the Heritage Emergency Fund, including who they will and will not be able to fund, as well as what they will and will not fund can be found here for the £3,000 - £50,000 stream and found here for the £50,000 - £250,000 stream. The fund will now close for applications on Friday 31 July. The NLHF has created a helpful PDF with relevant applicant information and guidance videos for organisations thinking of applying to their emergency fund. If you were unsuccessful with an application to the ACE emergency funding, you are still able to submit an application for the NLHF's 'Heritage Emergency Fund', provided you meet their eligibility criteria. To check that you meet the NLHF's eligibility criteria, please see who they will and will not be able to fund on their website.

The Government has announced a £1.5 billion funding package for the Arts and Culture sector. Full details of the funding are yet to be released, but the support package will help to protect the futures of UK museums, galleries, theatres and other cultural venues. It includes a £1.15 billion support pot for cultural organisations in England, made up of £270 million of repayable finance and £880 million in grants. There will be £100 million of targeted support for the national cultural institutions in England and the English Heritage Trust and £120 million capital investment to restart construction on cultural infrastructure and for heritage construction projects, paused due to the coronavirus pandemic. You can find further information on the Gov.uk website and on the BBC.

ACE has announced that their National Lottery Project Grants will be re-opening from 22 July, with a budget of £59.8 million available until April 2021. They will be making improvements to make the fund more responsive to the needs of smaller independent organisations and individual practitioners during Covid-19. Further details and guidance will be published soon, find more information on their website.

With the Government announcing updated guidance and easing of lockdown restrictions, the Mayor of London, City Hall Culture team and their partners are looking at ways in which they can help people feel safe and confident in supporting their local cinemas, museums, galleries and other cultural spaces. They would like to know if you have plans to re-open on 4th July and are looking to share some of the unique stories from across the sector with the whole city as part of #LondonisOpen. If your organisation is planning to reopen on 4th July or in the weeks immediately after, please get in touch with them on culture.invitation@london.gov.uk. Whilst they are looking to highlight and support those organisations who are able to reopen on 4th July, this has been and remains a hugely challenging time for culture in London. At City Hall they are working to support the sector and have set up a range of resources and support which can be found here. You can register with the Culture at Risk office to make sure that they can provide you with the right type of support and keep you up to date with news on resources, funds and guidance. You can register on their website.

You can now find the recordings of our series of training sessions on using social media, with a focus on the challenges of Covid-19. Don't forget to subscribe to our YouTube channel and to click the notification button to be notified of when we release new videos, such as a recording of our 'Planning for Reopening' session, led by Ben Melham. You can find more information about our upcoming online training sessions below.

The national Museum Development Network is working in partnership with the Art Fund on recovery grants for museums. The Art Fund is contributing £280,000 UK-wide to a partnership with the Museum Development Network, which will help smaller museums at serious risk. Details of how the programme will operate in the London region will be made available on our website soon. Further information about the partnership as a whole can be found on the Art Fund's website.

The Art Fund has also released information on their new stream of funding, 'Respond and Reimagine grants'. These new grants aim to help museums, galleries and cultural organisations respond to immediate challenges connected to the Covid-19 crisis, and offer support to adapt and reimagine ways of working for the future. The Respond and Reimagine grants offer funding from £10,000 to £50,000, with a deadline for round one applications of Monday 06 July. Currently the second round has a deadline of Monday 17 August and the third round a deadline of Monday 12 October. For further information about these grants, including who can apply and what they will fund, please visit their website.

We will continue to offer one-to-one advice to museums and specialist support on Organisational Health, Audiences, Digital Technologies and Collections. You can find the relevant MDO contact information for those specialist areas on our website.

2. Funding and Funding Support \(to top\)

National Lottery Heritage Fund's 'Heritage Emergency Fund'

The National Lottery Heritage Fund has extended the application deadline for their Heritage Emergency Fund to 12noon, Friday 31 July. These grants can now also be used to help organisations reopen after the coronavirus (COVID-19) crisis. Further information about the changes, including the update to what they will now fund, can be found on their website. NLHF are also encouraging organisations funded by them more than 10 years ago to apply, as well as those funded by them more recently. Further information about the changes, including the update to what they will now fund, can be found on their website. Detailed information for the £3,000 - £50,000 grant stream, including who they will and will not be able to fund, as well as what they will and will not fund can be found here. The same detailed information for the £50,000 - £250,000 stream can be found here. Both streams will now close on 12noon, Friday 31 July. The NLHF has created a helpful PDF with relevant applicant information when considering making an application to either level of funding. The NLHF has also published guidance videos for organisations thinking of applying to their emergency fund. This includes a video which takes you through a typical example of a cashflow forecast, which organisations applying to the Heritage Emergency Fund for over £10,000 will need to submit. If you were unsuccessful with an application to the ACE emergency funding, you are still able to submit an application for the NLHF's 'Heritage Emergency Fund', provided you meet their eligibility criteria. To check that you meet the NLHF's eligibility criteria, please see who they will and will not be able to fund on their website.

Art Fund's Respond and reimagine grants

The Art Fund has released information on their new stream of funding, 'Respond and reimagine grants'. These new grants aim to help museums, galleries and cultural organisations respond to immediate challenges connected to the Covid-19 crisis, and offer support to adapt and reimagine ways of working for the future. The Respond and reimagine grants offer funding from £10,000 to £50,000, with a deadline for round one applications of today, Monday 06 July. These grants can provide practical support to fund what you need now. This could relate to costs connected to re-opening, such as staffing, equipment or training, or planning for future activities. The Art Fund want you to tell them what will be most helpful to you. Currently the second round has a deadline of Monday 17 August and the third round a deadline of Monday 12 October. For further information about these grants, including who can apply and what they will fund, please visit their website.

Art Fund's Small Project Grants

The small project grants provide funding to help museums, galleries and visual arts organisations act on good ideas and test new ways of working that will benefit their audiences. Grants of up to £10,000 are available, and they can be used in response to the Covid-19 crisis. Further information on the grants, and how to apply, can be found on their website.

Discretionary Grant Fund

London boroughs have welcomed the government's guidance published last week on additional funding provided to support businesses via the Discretionary Grant Fund. The scheme will help to protect some of London's small businesses that have not been eligible for previously announced funding. Follow this link to find out more and see if your museum could be eligible.

National Lottery Community Fund

This Government grants scheme prioritises funding projects and organisations supporting communities through the pandemic. Grants available from £300 to £100,000. You can find more information on their website.

‘Pay it Forward’ platform

Pay it Forward gives Londoners a chance to support their favourite small businesses – from grassroots music venues and community theatres, to independent galleries and fashion studios, and everything in between. Businesses offer customers the option to pay for future goods and services – with no fees or transaction costs. To date, over 740 businesses have signed up, with 112 live campaigns and pledges from over 1,600 Londoners. You can find out more and sign up online.

Trusts and Foundations for London Museums resource

London Museum Development has compiled an Excel spreadsheet which highlights a large number of the trusts and foundations which offer funding and support for the museum sector. We began compiling this document before Covid-19, so some of the funds may not be running this financial year. Still, the resource will be incredibly useful when looking for funding streams for your work. You can download the Excel spreadsheet here, along with a number of our other resources.

London Museum Development: Skills Plus

Preparing for the future of volunteer management after COVID-19

Wednesday 08 July, 2 – 4:30pm

Online (Zoom)

Want to find out what the implications for volunteering are as we transition out of ‘lockdown’ from COVID-19? Would you like to know what this might mean as your museum’s approach to volunteer engagement will need to change? These are two big questions that with the business of adapting during lockdown, means we haven’t always had much of a chance for reflection. This session will help with that, allowing you to explore the answers and consider what you need to do to succeed at volunteer engagement in our changed world. You can find out more about the session, and book a place, on our website.

London Museum Development: Skills Plus

Creating a family friendly environment on reopening

Thursday 30 July, 2 – 4pm

Online (Zoom)

This session will outline the concerns families have about returning to museums and how you can create a welcoming environment for them. Museums are now operating in a very different environment, with many of their usual family activities and interactives made impossible by the restrictions, so how can we ensure our family visitors have a fulfilling and enjoyable experience? You can find out more about the session, and book a place, on our website.

London Museum Development: Digital Training Assess and improve your digital activities (fully booked)

Wednesday 08 July, 10:30am - 1pm

Online, via Zoom (fully booked)

This session is now fully booked, but if you complete the booking form you will be added to a list which will be directly emailed the recording of the session, once it is live on our YouTube channel.

Where are your museum's digital strengths and weaknesses? The Digital Culture Compass, commissioned by Arts Council England in partnership with the National Lottery Heritage Fund, has been designed to support arts, culture and heritage organisations to assess their approach to digital technology. London Museum Development (LMD) wants to support a small number of museums to use the Digital Culture Compass, in a session designed to guide participants through using the toolkit. This session will enable participating museums to measure their digital work and plan for future activities. LMD will look at your museum's strategy behind its use of digital and use the toolkit to measure where digital can help your museum to achieve its mission, goals and aims. You can find out more about the session, and book a place, on our website.

London Museum Development: Digital Training Video Editing

Friday 24 July, 11am – 2pm

Online, Via Zoom

This session will provide you with some more advanced video editing techniques, using the free programme 'HitFilm Express'. This session is for those who already have a very basic understanding of video editing, either using programmes like iMovie or Windows Movie Maker, or through apps on phones / tablet devices. You will learn techniques such as: Trimming, cutting and overlaying audio / video; Inserting transitions, images and text into videos; Adding captions into videos and much more. You can find out more about the session, and book a place, on our website.

London Museum Development: Digital Chat Online Fundraising

Wednesday 09 July, 11am – 12pm

The next topic will be 'Online Fundraising'. This will be an opportunity for museum professionals to join in, meet colleagues from the sector and discuss the opportunities and challenges of using online platforms for raising funds. We'll be focusing on how museums are currently using online platforms, how they are engaging their audiences with fundraising and some of the campaigns museums have run. We will hopefully be joined by a couple of museums who have run / are running online fundraising campaigns at this time. To join, email:

LondonMDTraining@museumoflondon.org.uk with your name and organisation.

You'll be able to find more information about our weekly chats on our website in due course.

Regional Collection Care Team

Access to more free conservation & collection care advice for London Region Museums during Lockdown.

Whilst everyone is currently on lockdown, you may have had some time to consider collection issues which often get overtaken by day to day work and activities and would like to get some help with addressing them. So if you are a member of staff or volunteer in a London region museum and would like advice from the Museum of London team of conservators via a Zoom meeting, we would be delighted to hear from you. Our conservators cover the areas of paper, textiles, applied arts, archaeology and collection care. We can't offer advice on treating specific objects, however if you would like to ask about issues such as storage, display, handling and packing, suitable environmental conditions or general conservation advice for your various collections then please email Libby on colcaretraining@museumoflondon.org.uk and briefly describe your collection concerns and what you would like to discuss, then we will get together the people who can help and arrange a Zoom meeting with you.

Virtual Classrooms

Wednesday 15 July, 9.30 – 11am

GEM London Area Rep Frances Jeens from Jewish Museum London will take you through building a virtual classroom space for museum re-opening. You can sign up to the training on GEM's website.

How museums and heritage sites can stay fire safe whilst doors are closed

“London Fire Brigade is urging all cultural attractions to collaborate with their local fire service and develop an emergency plan to mitigate the loss of priceless heritage should the worst case scenario arise during Covid-19 closure.” Read the full article on the M+H Advisor.

Resources for planning for post Covid re-opening

London Museum Development has created a helpful PDF to use when planning your re-opening, post lockdown, which signposts useful links to resources and articles around re-opening. We will be regularly updating this resource, as more information about how the lockdown will be lifted is published, so do refer back to it as your planning develops. You can find the resource on our 'Resources' page.

Legionella risks in closed buildings

Legionnaires' disease is a type of pneumonia which can cause serious illness in more susceptible people. It is caused by the growth of Legionella in water systems and associated equipment (such as evaporative air conditioning) which are not adequately managed. See the UK government guidance on how to address this. Closure of buildings or their restricted use can increase the risks during the coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak, as water system stagnation can occur due to lack of use. You should review your risk assessment and manage the legionella risks when you reinstate a water system or air con unit. If the water system has been used regularly throughout, then you must maintain the appropriate measures. The HSE website has full details on risk assessment during the COVID-19 emergency.

ICOM's safety guidance for museums coming out of lockdown

The International Council of Museums (ICOM) recently published safety guidance to help museums as they reopen, while protecting the safety of both the public and their staff. You can find the guidance on ICOM's website.
